Another important question considered at this meeting was the position which we should take regarding the fight between the contrators and the producers as to the elimination of the so-called "Leased car system" for the transportation of milk. This was the vote that the state grange appropriate a sum equal to 50 per cent. of all moneys raised by the several Connecticut dairy associations. Said sum not to exceed $500.

Potent Factor in Legislation. Your state grange during the session of our last legislature was recognized as being the most potent factor in all legislation pertaining to the needs of the country resident. A great part of the time of the secretary of this committee was given to the work.

Brother F. E. Duffy, chairman of the legislative committee deserves all the legislative committee, deserves all the "Thank You" we can bestow upon him for his unceasing effort to have him for his unceasing effort to have favorable action taken upon those bills in which we were so much interested. It did cost something. You can not do these things unless you are willing to at least pay the expenses of those who are in the work. I am afraid some of you do not understand some of the things that your legislative committee accomplished. The most important bills in which we were interested were those relating to taxinterested were those relating to tax-ation. You will recall that at the be-ginning of the last legislature the pro-posal was to put over a flat two mills state tax. A tax which would have rested the heaviest upon all farm property. But through the efforts of the state grappe committee against property. But through the efforts of the state grange committee, assisted by those Pomona and subordinate committees, which rendered such efficient aid, your committee reduced this proposed state tax to one-half of a mill and in other ways secured funds to not only meet the needs of our state's expenditures, but also to create a sinking fund. This through measures where our cooperate interests pay their share of taxation. This readjustment of taxation made a difference of $1100 to our town of Woodstock.

You delegates from other towns can figure out what it means to you. An attempt to change these laws of taxation will without doubt be made at this session of our legislature. In your selection of legislative committee it is up to you to appoint those who will give this work the same careful attention and consideration as their predecessors have done. In the New England fight, which wase made against the "Leased Car" system, the state grange was "ever there." You delegates from other towns can

Your state master and the chairman of your executive committee attended all the hearings before the mierstate commerce commission both in Boston and Washington. The state grange and the Dairymen's Association used every effort to present the facts to the commission and when a decision from the commission abolishing the leased car system was received there was joy in the heart of every milk producer, not only in eastern Connecticut, but throughout the state.

In passing your committee wish to express our appreciation of the position taken by the Hon. Herbert Knox Smith who for a remuneration barely sufficient to pay his expenses attended the hearings and presented our case for us and did more to convince the commission of the justice of our position than all other agencies combined. Your state master and the chairman

The Connecticut state grange, after conducting a three days' convention in this city, closed its sessions Thursday afternoon shortly after 4 o'clock after a most successful gathering.

On Thursday the state organization went on record as favoring the establishment of universal peace, endorsed woman suffrage and passed a resolution against the liquor traffic in this state, besides several other important resolutions.

In closing your executive committee wish to express their appreciation to the brothers of the Norwich grange; Brother Rogers and Brother Hagberg; to the management of The Wauregan hotel, as well as to the press, who have thus far done so much to make our stay while in this state, besides several other important resolutions. SHIPMENTS OF FOOD Postmaster Murphy Receives Circular Letter from Postoffice Department.

Postmaster John P. Murphy has received a circular letter from the post-office department which urges more parcel post shipments of food products. The letter reads as follows:

In view of the high prices of food products now prevalent throughout the country, it is desired that you advertise and advocate in every way practicable the facility offered by the parcel post for the shipment of farm products directly from the producer to the consumer.

Investigate thoroughly this matter as it affects your city and be prepared to advise patrons and civic organizations in an intelligent and helpful manner. Compare the prices received by the farmers within the second zone of your office for butter, eggs, fresh meat and other farm produce with the prices paid for these commodities by your patrons. The difference is the present cost to the consumer in your city of bringing these food products from the farm to the table. Compare this cost on various articles with the parcel post charge on identical shipments (both in small lots and in 50-pound packages). This difference, in each case, is what may be saved on a commodity by those who go to the trouble of making an arrangement for securing food supplies by parcel post. Investigate thoroughly this matter food supplies by parcel post.

Farmers within the first and second zones should be inspired by the almost unlimited opportunity to expand the business of producing and selling directly to the consumers in your city butter, eggs and such meat and vegetable producing as your investigation. shows can be shipped in that way with a sufficient margin of profit. They should be cautioned, however, that this business cannot be developed and maintained unless they are willing to share liberally with the customer in the city the saving which is effected by parcel post shipment. Farmers must be brought to understand that the city customer in dealing with them by mail foregoes the advantages of credit, personal inspection of goods and immediate delivery, and that he naturally cannot be expected to deal by a facel post unless he can be assured of better products at less price.

Excellent arrangements may often be made between individual consumers or co-operative buying clubs in the city and country storekeepers who receive farm produce by barter or purchase. Prices under these arrangements may be no higher than those established under direct arrangements with farmers, and there is more assurance of continuous supply and standard quality. You may secure valuable assistance in reaching the attention of the country storekeepers and individual farmers as well by communicating with some of the fourth class postmasters in your vicinity. The city consumers who are patrons class postmasters in your vicinity.

The city consumers who are patrons of your office should be impressed with the great advantages that may be secured from a satisfactory arrangement with a reliable farmer under which food supplies will be received at regular intervals in fresh condition and at reasonable prices. They should be encouraged to persist in the effort to make these arrangements and not to make these arrangements and not to b ediscouraged by one or more attempts in which the farmer communicated with is unable to give the service desired.

This whole matter is one in which agricultural and civic organizations are disposed to interest themselves and you should therefore make an energetic effort to enlist the co-operation of such institutions in a practical campaign to reduce the cost of living in your city by inducing direct shipments of food products by parcel post. Those who represent such institutions should be informed that these direct ship-ments of food products not only result in economy to those receiving them but also exercise a salutary moral in-fluence in deterring shippers and dealers from entering into oppressive com
